

Paul Barber delivered a set of relics, with up to 40 artifacts of Saints and one housing a part of the Cross of Christ. They will be secure in the College Chapel in perpetuity.

Paul Barber at some time will explain all about our relics, their meaning and history and the route to our Chapel home!

However, for my Concordia readers I decided to research Jan Hendrick Brom, whose silverworks in Belgium was responsible for making the "reliquaries" to hold the forty-odd relics encased within.

In Jan Hendrick Brom's silverworks a team of skilled artisans created beautiful artefacts for Catholic Churches across Europe, including reliquaries similar to the one holding the College Relics – delivered into our care by Paul Barber.

Jan Hendrik Brom

Thanks to a offer by Paul Barber there is now a set of Relics, held in three reliquaries in the College Chapel. The reliquaries themselves are beautiful and ornate and can be viewed in a secure glass case. They were made by Jan Hendrick Brom, These beautiful original masterpieces were made in the Dutch Masters' Silverworks we are blessed by these gifts
